St. Johns - Webzone Marketing, a local website development and marketing company, has donated a new website to the St. Johns Public Schools drama and forensics program to highlight the activities of the middle school and high school theater programs as well as the high school forensics department.

The site, www.sjpstheater.com, features a webpage on upcoming St. Johns Drama department plays, including Footloose, this year’s fall musical at the high school; the high school’s winter entry, The Boyfriend, into the MIFA play competition; information about the high school’s spring forensics program; and information about the next SJMS production, Seussical Jr. the Musical. The site also has a calendar and ticket information.

"We are excited that St. Johns Theater is taking another step toward the future with a website. We hope that it will serve as an easy and convenient way to communicate with the whole community." Stated Ashley Bowen, St. Johns High School musical director. "It is an exciting year for theater at St. Johns and we hope that the community will have a chance to enjoy our hard work."

"We are extraordinarily proud of all the kids involved with this tradition-rich program and we were happy we could give them a first class website," stated Will Carlson, proud parent and owner of Webzone Marketing. "If your student has already graduated from these programs but you still like to support St. John’s drama – here’s a site that will help keep you informed, and help you order your tickets."

"The St. John’s drama department has been a wonderful part of our lives," says Mary Corser-Carlson, who put together much of the site’s content. "Our children have been involved in St. Johns theater productions since elementary school in and these productions have meant so much to our family, and Will and I saw making this website as an opportunity to give back to the people and programs that have meant so much to us."
